

I chose the Fountaindale Public Library. They advocate for the education, discovery, and enrichment of their community. They are supporting library related issues within their community through their events, both online and in person, and informing their community about what they want their community to advocate. Currently they are advocating voting for their community members by informing that they are a vote early location on all their social media and also hosting events such as winning votes for women. They are advocating for their community to be politically aware and informed and to then actively utilize their voting rights. They are also advocating to artistic and creative teens through their usability of their maker space, events focused on various art forms and teaching drawing techniques on different fandoms. This is a wide market to include teens and young adults as well as those who want to be politically active and need a space where they can learn and cast their vote.
